The mile limit problem is now being considered by the Commissioners. ## POSTOFFICE POETRY.

The Touching Tale of Ned Horner Done Into Rhyme.

Postoffice Department Inspector Con-rad, who arrested in New York two weeks ago Edward H. Horner for perpetrating the well-worn bogus bond swindle on an innocent and confiding German immigrant, has been inspired to woo the poetic muse in this shape after the style and manner of little Jack Horner of nursery frame;

Little Ned Horner Had a big cerner Booming his foreign bonds: He had a nice plum Right under his thumb, And his cheek was harder than bronze.

Using Uncle Sam's mail
As a means to assall
And rope the poor foreigners in,
All over the nation. This sweet speculation Brought Horner a barrel of rin.

But some restless inspectors.
Who are always objectors
To nice little schemes of this kind,
Gof on to the racket,
And began to attack it,
In a way neither nice nor resince.

They put little Horner
In a very light corner,
And court plastered him over with bills,
Which requires more bonds.
Not the kind the sold Hans,
Hut a kind that will give him the chills.

decided complement to Miss Pauline Hall and her company. It has been a long time since Mbs Hall was seen in Washington, and her popularity under the circumstances is something surprising.

The house was one of the largest of the season and showed a gratifyingly enthusiastic appreciation of the performance. Miss Hall sings with a clearness and accuracy that makes her remarkable from a musical standpoint, and her handsome face and figure lond a peculiar charm to all the scenes in which she participates. Her company is a good one, the sololists the second game in the exhibition series between the Orioles and the Senators at Baltimore yesterday.

It is simple in its tyle but strong in its effects, and the audience at the National last night showed dience at the National last night showed every evidence of appreciation. Mr. C. S. Lipman leads the company, playing the part of the burglar with a depth of reeling that stamps him as an artist. The company is in most respects a good one, and the performance deserving of a great deal of praise for the smoothness with which it is carried through. The Burglar" has in a previous engagement in this city proved a strong favorite with play-going people. Its popularity then made the success of a return engagement almost a matter of certainty.

Harris'. "The Shadow Detective" took the attilience at the Bijon Theatre by storm last night. It is a sensational drama whose night. It is a sensational drama whose thrilling situations and stirring climaxes arouse the people to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. The play has a peculiar current interest in view of the prominence which the Italian immigrants to this country have attained. It contains vivid and life-like pictures of the haunts of the Italians in New York, showing the manners of the "Padrones" who brought children by hundreds to this country to made street nussions and been country to made street musiciaus and beg-country to made street musicians and beggars of them.

The play is founded on fact, and tells of the efforts of a shrewd, silent detective to rescue a woman and her daughter who have been abducted. The case excited wide attention in New York, and indeed through the entire country in 1878, and the detective is now an honored guest at the home of the lady whom he rescuel from a lunstic asylum. Such at least is the story that is told in connection with the play, and there is no reason to doubt the play, and there is no reason to doubt its accuracy, for the police annals show many such cases as wonderful as those many such cases as wonderful as those found in fiction.

Mr. Dan'l A. Kelly is the detective and displays versatility that is wonderful, assuming a number of totally distinct characters during the performance. Miss Joan Craven was well received as Leonie, the waif, and Mr. Harry Buckingham pleased the audience and gratified his friends by his clever comedy impersonations. "The Shadow Detective" will be given for the entire week with matinees on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

It is a rare thing that the habitues of the Washington variety theatres have a chance to see an entirely new combina chance to see an entirely new combination. They had that chance at Kernan's last night, and the Whallen & Martell Company made a most favorable impression on the very large audience that greeted it. Of course, the most interesting part of the performance was the exhibitions in hypnotism by the Brothers de Gray, and there were a large number of medical men and scientist present to witness the remarkable demonstrations.
A number of the gentlemen went upon the stage and carefully examined the subject while he was in a cataleptic state, and ject while he was in a catalentic state, and expressed themselves as entirely satisfied with the genuineness of the performance. The Martell Brothers made a hit in their gymnastic and acrobatic feats and later on the entire family appeared on the stage in a series of bicycle and unicycle cyclutions that delighted the audience. McIntyre and Heath, in their comedy absurdity, "Attention," brought forth roars of laughter from the gallery. Taken as a whole, the performance was a marked success. The company is made up of clever people and a very pleasant evening is in store for those who want to see a good

PRICE OF PROPERTY. An Offer of $67,000 Refused for Ker-

Judge Miller is having some difficulty in getting a jury for his court, and he spent several hours this morning in examining the men who had been drawn to complete it. The gentlemen drawn do not seem to be particularly anxious to serve and they bring forth all sorts of excuses in order to escape serving. Most of these excuses take the form of certificates from physicians to the effect that the men drawn are not in condition to serve, and others allege business.

Some time ago the price per foot placed on Kernan's frontage on Pennsylvania Avenue was twenty dollars. It was also claimed that no property on any front of this proposed new post-office site other than the Avenue could be hought for less than nine dollars per foot. Washington Nailor yesterday made an offer of $7.50 for the Cora Strous real estate on C street, but while the offer has not yet been refused it has not been accepted.

The ragged fringe of brick and dirt piles which has decorated the west side of Tenth street, between D and E, for several moons, may be a thing of beauty, but it most be getting tired of the prospect of remaining a joy forever. People who pass that way are beginning to ask them-selves how much longer those bricks will be permitted to linger superfluous on the Tenth street pave.
